BILL: SB 280

INTRODUCER: Senator Hutson

SUBJECT: Local Ordinances

DATE: January 7, 2022

REVISED: _____

I. Summary:

SB 280 pertains to the passage and challenging of local ordinances. It adds to the process for local governments passing ordinances and gives certain additional rights to those challenging local ordinances.

The bill requires counties and cities to produce a “business impact statement” prior to passing an ordinance. The statement must be published on the local government’s website and include certain information, such as the proposed ordinance’s purpose, estimated economic impact on businesses, and the scientific basis.

Additionally, the bill imposes certain conditions on lawsuits brought to challenge the legal validity of local ordinances as preempted by state law, arbitrary or unreasonable, or otherwise prohibited by law. In these cases, the bill:

- Requires the local government to suspend enforcement of an ordinance of such legal challenge, including appeals, under certain circumstances.
- Requires the court to give those cases in which enforcement of the ordinance is suspended priority over other pending cases and render a preliminary or final decision as expeditiously as possible.
- Outlines specific factors the court must consider to determine if an ordinance is arbitrary or unreasonable.
- Provides attorney fees to a complainant who successfully challenges an ordinance as arbitrary or unreasonable, or prohibited by law other than by express preemption.

The bill contains a finding of important state interest.

The bill takes effect October 1, 2022.

II. Present Situation:

Local Ordinances

The governing body of a county or municipality has broad legislative powers to enact ordinances, local laws, to perform governmental functions and exercise power to promote the health, welfare, safety, and quality of life of a local government's residents. Ordinances address a wide variety of local issues, from government structure and zoning laws to speed limits and noise ordinances. Procedures for passing local ordinances are prescribed by the Legislature and differ only slightly between counties and municipalities.

Procedures for Enacting Ordinances

A board of county commissioners must notice its intent to consider an ordinance or amendment to an ordinance 10 days before the meeting at which the ordinance will be considered. The notice, placed in a newspaper of general circulation, should include the date, time, and place of the meeting, the proposed ordinance title, and instructions for how to view the language. The board may then vote to pass the ordinance at the meeting, and upon passage, must send a certified copy of the ordinance to the Florida Department of State (DOS).¹ County ordinances take effect upon filing with the DOS, unless otherwise prescribed in the ordinance.²

Similarly, municipalities must notice intent to consider an ordinance 10 days before adoption. However, municipalities must also read the ordinance by title or in full on at least 2 separate days before adoption by vote.³ An ordinance passed by a municipality becomes effective 10 days after passage, unless otherwise prescribed in the ordinance.⁴

Emergency Ordinances

A board of county commissioners may adopt an emergency ordinance that bypasses the notice requirements if the governing body declares that an emergency exists requiring the immediate enactment of the ordinance and the ordinance is approved by a four-fifths vote of the membership.⁵ A municipality may bypass reading and notice requirements to pass an emergency ordinance by a two-thirds vote of the governing body.⁶ An emergency ordinance may not be used to adopt zoning and land use changes.⁷

Local Government Authority

The Florida Constitution grants local governments broad authority to take actions furthering citizens' health, welfare, safety, and quality of life. This "home rule" authority includes legislative powers to enact local laws. Specifically, non-charter county governments may exercise those powers of self-government that are provided by general or special law.⁸ Those counties operating under a county charter have all powers of local self-government not inconsistent with general law or special law approved by the vote of the electors.⁹ Likewise, municipalities have those governmental, corporate, and proprietary powers that enable them to conduct municipal government, perform their functions and provide municipal services, and exercise any power for municipal purposes, except as otherwise provided by law.¹⁰

This authority, under the umbrella of governmental or municipal purpose, extends broadly to any ordinance necessary to promote the health, welfare, safety, and quality of life of a local government's residents.¹¹ Local governments' authority has been liberally construed when reviewed by courts. For example, courts have found the following to meet the standards for what constitutes a "municipal purpose," and therefore were valid local government actions:

- Acquisition and maintenance of a golf course;¹²
- Sale of souvenir photographs;¹³ and
- Prohibiting the rental of motorized scooters.¹⁴

In general, this broad home rule authority is limited by two guideposts: preemption, where a higher level of government such as the State has already legislated on a topic, and standards of reasonableness. Local governments may not pass ordinances which are apparently unreasonable or unreasonable, despite their wide-ranging powers.¹⁵ Anyone affected by an ordinance may challenge its validity in court by filing a civil action against the local government.¹⁶

Preemption

An ordinance can be declared invalid on the grounds that it is inconsistent with the State Constitution or Florida Statutes. Inconsistency may be found where a local ordinance is either preempted by or in conflict with the State Constitution or Florida Statutes.¹⁷ Preemption means that a local government is precluded from exercising authority in a particular area, while conflict exists where a municipality has the right to act but such action frustrates the purpose of the state regulation.¹⁸ Express preemption refers to instances where the Legislature has directly written into law that the State intends to occupy a field of law, prohibiting local governments from taking action in that field.¹⁹

Implied preemption, however, refers to situations where no express preemption is written into statute, but the Legislature has regulated a field such that local legislation would present the danger of conflict with that regulatory scheme.²⁰ In this context, conflict occurs any time a citizen would necessarily violate one provision in order to comply with the other. Implied preemption and conflict are necessarily more nuanced and less foreseeable than express preemption.

Arbitrary and Unreasonable Ordinances: Presumption of Validity

An ordinance can also be declared invalid on the grounds that it is arbitrary or unreasonable, meaning that it has no legitimate governmental interest. In legal challenges to local ordinances based on being arbitrary or unreasonable, the local ordinances are presumed valid by courts reviewing them, and the burden falls on the challenger to establish the ordinance's arbitrary or unreasonable nature.²¹ Courts apply "rational basis review" to ordinances, simply determining whether an ordinance is rationally related to a legitimate government interest- if it fails to meet this test, an ordinance is declared invalid.²² In these instances, courts have stated that there is no governmental purpose where there is no apparent benefit, such as protecting the health, welfare, safety, and quality of life, to the citizens, the benefit appears to apply to non-residents, or the government has attempted to frustrate the purpose of another governmental entity.²³

Given this deference, courts have rarely found that an ordinance entirely lacks governmental, or municipal purpose. However, in one case, the Florida Supreme Court ruled that a local ordinance prohibiting the operation of surfboards and skimmers on beaches was unlawfully arbitrary and unreasonable. In its ruling, the court stated, "[t]he Town of Palm Beach may regulate and control surfing and skinning in areas subject to its jurisdiction and may prohibit these activities at certain places along the beach. However, the complete prohibition of this sport from all the beach area is arbitrary and unreasonable."²⁴

Attorney Fees For Challenges Based on Express Preemption

Current law provides that in a civil action to challenge the validity of a local ordinance on the grounds that it is expressly preempted by the State Constitution or by state law, the court must assess and award reasonable attorney fees, costs, and damages to the prevailing party, either the challenger or local government.²⁵ The local government can avoid paying attorney fees, costs, and damages if after receiving notices that an ordinance is expressly preempted, the governing body withdraws the proposed ordinance within 30 days.²⁶

Priority Docketing

The Florida Rules of Judicial Administration govern the ways a judge controls a case in terms of timing and docketing. Some cases that come before a court are deemed priority cases, either directly in statute, in rule of procedure, or case law. Every judge has a duty to expedite priority cases to the extent reasonably possible.²⁷ For these cases judges are tasked with implementing docket control policies necessary to advance the case and ensure prompt resolution.²⁸ Docket control policies include setting deadlines for phases of the case, giving priority to hearings required to advance the case, and advancing the trial setting. A party in a priority status case may file a notice of priority status, and has recourse if they believe the case has not been appropriately advanced on the docket or received priority in scheduling.²⁹

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Attorney Fees

Section 1 amends s. 57.112, F.S., to provide that when an ordinance is successfully challenged in court as arbitrary, unreasonable, or unlawful other than by express preemption the court may, but is not required to, award attorney fees and costs to the complainant.

Business Impact Statement

Sections 2 and 4 amends ss. 125.66 and 166.041, F.S., require counties and cities, respectively, to produce a “business impact statement” prior to passing an ordinance. The business impact statement must include the following:

- A statement of the public purpose to be served by the proposed ordinance, such as serving the public health, safety, or welfare;
- A statement of the reasonable connection between the public purpose and the expected effects of the ordinance;
- The total estimated economic effect of the proposed ordinance on businesses;
- An estimate of the number of businesses likely affected by the ordinance;
- An analysis of the extent to which the proposed ordinance may deter or encourage the formation of new businesses;
- An analysis of the extent to which the proposed ordinance may effect business competitiveness with businesses outside the jurisdiction of the local government;
- The scientific basis of the proposed ordinance, where applicable;
- Lower-impact alternatives considered; and
- Any additional information the government deems useful.

This requirement does not apply to emergency ordinances.

Challenging Ordinances

Sections 3 and 5 create ss. 125.675 and 166.0411, F.S., to set conditions on lawsuits brought to challenge local ordinances as preempted by the State Constitution or by state law, arbitrary, unreasonable, or otherwise prohibited by law. The bill requires the local government to suspend enforcement of an ordinance subject to such an action, including appeals, if:

- The action was filed with the court no later than 20 days after the effective date of the ordinance;
- The plaintiff or petitioner requests suspension in the initial complaint or petition; and
- The county or city has been served with a copy of the complaint or petition.

Additionally, the court must give those cases in which enforcement of the ordinance is suspended priority over other pending cases and render a preliminary or final decision as expeditiously as possible.

The bill also outlines factors the court is to consider in determining whether an ordinance is arbitrary or unreasonable. These include, but are not limited to:

- The extent to which the ordinance protects the health, welfare, safety, and quality of life of the residents of the county;
- The impact of the ordinance on the personal rights and privileges of the residents of the county;
- The total economic impact of the ordinance; and
- The business impact statement prepared by the county or municipality.

These provisions do not apply to emergency ordinances; growth policy, county and municipal planning, and land development regulations under part II of ch. 163, F.S.; building code ordinances under s. 553.73, F.S.; or fire prevention code ordinances under s. 633.202, F.S.

Finally, the bill provides a cross reference to the new attorney fee provisions in section 1 of the bill.

Sections 6 through 12 correct statutory references to conform to changes made by the bill.

Section 13 contains a finding of important state interest.

Section 14 provides the bill takes effect October 1, 2022.

IV. Constitutional Issues:

A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

The county and municipality mandate provisions of Article VII, section 18 of the Florida Constitution may apply because the bill requires local governments to expend funds to produce a business impact statement for each ordinance prior to consideration for adoption. Article VII, section 18 (a) of the Florida Constitution provides in part that a county or municipality may not be bound by a general law requiring a county or municipality to spend funds or take an action that requires the expenditure of funds unless certain specified exemptions or exceptions are met.

None of the constitutional exceptions appear to apply.

Article VII, section 18 (d) provides eight exemptions, which, if any single one is met, exempts the law from the limitations on mandates. Laws having an “insignificant fiscal impact” are exempt from the mandate requirements, which for Fiscal Year 2021-2022 is forecast at approximately $2.3 million.^{30,31,32} However, any local government costs associated with the bill are speculative and not readily estimable for purposes of determining whether the exemption for bills having an insignificant fiscal impact applies.

If the bill does qualify as a mandate, in order to be binding upon cities and counties, the bill must contain a finding of important state interest and be approved by a two-thirds vote of the membership of each house. The bill contains a legislative finding that its provisions fulfill an important state interest.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

None.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

D. State Tax or Fee Increases:

This bill does not create or raise state taxes or fees. Therefore, the requirements of Article VII, s. 19 of the Florida Constitution do not apply.

E. Other Constitutional Issues:

None identified.

V. Fiscal Impact Statement:

A. Tax/Fee Issues:

This bill does not affect state or local revenue.

³⁰ FLA. CONST. art. VII, s. 18(d).

³² Based on the Florida Demographic Estimating Conference’s March 3, 2021 population forecast for 2022 of 22,245,429. The conference packet is available at: <http://edr.state.fl.us/Content/conferences/population/ConferenceResults.pdf> (last visited Jan. 7, 2022).

B. Private Sector Impact:

The bill may have an indeterminate positive impact on private parties who bring actions challenging the enactment or enforcement of an ordinance by a local government. Private parties may benefit from the automatic stay and priority docketing, which may reduce costs for legal action, and will benefit from recovering attorney fees for successful actions.

C. Government Sector Impact:

Business impact statements will require staffing time and resources for each ordinance passed by a local government. The negative economic impact is indeterminate at this time.

Courts may see indeterminate economic impact as suspensions may reduce hearings sought for temporary injunctive relief, while priority docketing may increase workload for clerks of court.³³

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

None.

VII. Related Issues:

None.

VIII. Statutes Affected:

This bill substantially amends sections 57.112, 125.66, 166.041, 163.2517, 163.3181, 163.3215, 376.80, 497.270, 562.45, and 847.0134 Florida Statutes.

This bill creates sections 125.675 and 166.0411, Florida Statutes.
