with s. 119.15 and shall stand repealed on October 2, 2023, unless reviewed and saved from repeal through reenactment of the Legislature.

Section 2. Section 252.64, Florida Statutes, is created to read:

252.64 Public records exemption; damage assessments.—The name, address, and telephone number of a homeowner or tenant held by an agency as defined in s. 119.011, for the purpose of providing or receiving damage assessment data following a disaster are exempt from s. 119.07(1) and s. 24(a), Art. I of the State Constitution. Such information shall cease to be exempt 1 year after the date of the disaster. This section is subject to the Open Government Sunset Review Act in accordance with s. 119.15 and shall stand repealed on October 2, 2023, unless reviewed and saved from repeal through reenactment of the Legislature.

Section 3. (1) The Legislature finds that it is a public necessity that the name, address, and telephone number of a person using a public shelter during an emergency held by an agency be made exempt from s. 119.07(1), Florida Statutes, and s. 24(a), Article I of the State Constitution. Shelters are made available to the public to provide a safe place of accommodation before, during, and immediately following an emergency. During an emergency, the people affected are in a vulnerable state as they have voluntarily displaced themselves from their residences and possessions to seek refuge. The information submitted by such a shelter resident could be used by persons seeking to take advantage of their vulnerability during or following the emergency. In addition, people seeking shelter for their safety and the safety of their families should not be forced to forfeit their privacy for the sake of such safety. Therefore, the Legislature finds that it is a public necessity to protect such information from public disclosure.

The Legislature further finds that it is a public necessity that the name, address, and telephone number of a person held by an agency for the purpose of providing or receiving damage assessment data should be made exempt from s. 119.07(1), Florida Statutes, and s. 24(a), Article I of the State Constitution for 1 year following the date of a disaster. In response to a disaster, an agency, in trying to ascertain the damage to certain areas, may ask residents to submit damage assessment data detailing the damage to their properties. The agency may also create damage assessment data or amend the submitted data to enhance the accuracy of all damage assessments within a given area. The data may include a person's name, address, and telephone number which may be used to locate the damaged property, identify the owner or tenant, and contact them, if needed. Following a disaster, the people affected are vulnerable, frequently displaced, and living without their possessions, and their homes may be severely damaged, often to the point of being uninhabitable. The information could, if released, be used by thieves, predatory lenders, deceptive contractors, or persons otherwise seeking to take advantage of the vulnerability of an affected homeowner or tenant following a disaster. Therefore, it is necessary that this information be protected for a period of time to ensure that people affected by a disaster are not harassed, intimidated, or potentially defrauded.
