Abstract: Requires the Board of Ethics to furnish the name of a complainant to the subject of the complaint other than a public servant or agency, upon request after board action on the complain is concluded.

Present law requires the Board of Ethics (ethics board) to redact the name of the complainant prior to sending information to the accused. Present law further provides that it is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $2000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, for any member of the ethics board, or its staff to make public the testimony taken at a private investigation or private hearing of the ethics board or to make any public statement or give out any information concerning a private investigation or private hearing of the ethics board without the written request of the public servant or other person investigated. Present law further provides that any person who, with knowledge of its falsity, makes a false complaint shall be subject to the penalties set forth in present law (R.S. 42:1153) for violations of the ethics code which includes a fine of up to $10,000 and may also include censure, and for public employees may also include removal, suspension, or reduction in pay, or demotion.

Proposed law provides that after the conclusion of an investigation or other ethics board action on a complaint and upon written request by the person who is subject to an investigation or complaint other than a public servant or agency, the ethics board shall furnish the requestor with the name of the complainant, including the name of a complainant who filed a nonsworn complaint.
