1 convicted of a criminal offense is to hold the offender accountable for his action, to 2 compensate victims for any actual pecuniary loss or costs incurred in connection 3 with a criminal prosecution, to defray the cost of court operations, and to provide services to offenders and victims. These financial obligations should not create a 4 5 barrier to the offender's successful rehabilitation and reentry into society. Financial 6 obligations in excess of what an offender can reasonably pay undermine the primary 7 purpose of the justice system which is to deter criminal behavior and encourage 8 compliance with the law. Financial obligations that cause undue hardship on the 9 offender should be waived, modified, or forgiven. Creating a payment plan for the 10 offender that is based upon the ability to pay, results in financial obligations that the 11 offender is able to comply with and often results in more money collected. Offenders 12 who are consistent in their payments and in good faith try to fulfill their financial 13 obligations should be rewarded for their efforts. (2) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Article or other law to 14 the contrary, during or immediately after imposing a sentence in a case in which 15

If the court determines that the defendant does not have19sufficient resources or income to immediately pay all or part of the fine and20costs, the court shall determine whether the fine and costs should be:
