- 4. Defense. In an action to enforce subsection 2, paragraph B, it is a defense that a business owner or operator relied in good faith upon a written certification by the supplier of shell eggs that the shell eggs at issue were not derived from any egg-laying hen who was confined in violation of subsection 2, paragraph A.
- 5. Violation; penalty. Notwithstanding section 4016, violation of this section is governed by this subsection. A person who violates this section commits a civil violation. The court shall adjudge a civil fine of not less than $500 nor more than $5,000 per violation.
- 6. Injunction. In lieu of or in addition to the collection of fines under subsection 5, the commissioner may bring a civil action in the Superior Court to prevent, restrain or enjoin a violation of this section. - 7. Relation to other laws. The provisions of this section are in addition to, and not in lieu of, any other laws protecting animal welfare. This section may not be construed to limit any state law or rules protecting the welfare of animals or to prevent a local governing body from adopting and enforcing its own animal welfare ordinances and regulations.
- The affirmative defense provisions in section 4016, subsection 3 do not apply to this section. It is not an affirmative defense to alleged violations of this section that the egglaying hen is kept as part of an agricultural operation and in compliance with best management practices for animal husbandry.
- Sec. 2. Legislative findings. The Legislature finds that the regulation of egg production and of the sale of eggs is necessary to protect the health and welfare of consumers in the State, to promote food safety, to advance animal welfare and to protect the State against the negative fiscal impacts associated with the absence of effective regulation of egg production and sales of eggs.

- 1. Farm owners and operators in the State must keep their egg-laying hens in cagefree housing systems; and

Under the bill, a person who violates these requirements commits a civil violation for which a fine may be adjudged. In addition, the bill authorizes the Commissioner of Agriculture, Conservation and Forestry to bring a civil action to prevent, restrain or enjoin a violation of the requirements.
