12 SUMMARY

Current law authorizes a court to provide certain individuals access to confidential juror questionnaires, and the law allows such discretionary access to these questionnaires only at the courthouse itself. This bill eliminates the court's discretion and requires the court to provide access to these questionnaires at the courthouse. The bill also requires the court to electronically provide these questionnaires to authorized persons upon their request. The bill does not affect the confidentiality of such questionnaires and does not affect the receivers' obligation to maintain this confidentiality.
