

CHAPTER.....

AN ACT relating to the protection of children; revising provisions governing the procedure following a hearing to determine whether a child should remain in protective custody pending further action by the court; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Existing law requires an agency which provides child welfare services that has taken a child into protective custody: (1) to file a petition alleging that the child is in need of protection within 10 days after the hearing on protective custody, if the death of the parent of the child is or may be the result of an act of the other parent that constitutes domestic violence; or (2) in all other cases, to file a petition alleging that the child is in need of protection within 10 days after the hearing on protective custody, unless good cause exists to extend that time, or recommend against further action. (NRS 432B.490) This bill provides that in cases which do not involve the death of the parent of a child as a result of an act of the other parent that constitutes domestic violence, if the agency which provides child welfare services fails to file a petition alleging that the child is in need of protection within 10 days after the hearing on protective custody: (1) the agency may recommend against further action and return the child to the custody of the person responsible for the welfare of the child; or (2) any party to the proceeding may schedule an additional hearing with the court to determine whether it is in the best interests of the child to return the child to the person responsible for the welfare of the child pending further action by the court. This bill further provides for notice of the hearing to a parent or other person responsible for the welfare of the child.
