Bill Analysis

SB 765 prohibits any employer from requiring employees to take any vaccination, injection, shot or medication for any virus, disease, or condition as a condition of employment. An employee or applicant may voluntarily submit to and take a vaccination as recommended by an employer provided such person has first received, read, and signed a written statement explaining the person's right to refuse without retaliation or discrimination and the right to read a detailed explanation of the side effects and contra-indications of such vaccination, injection, shot, or medication.
