Whereas the attack on the United States Capitol on January 6, 2021, conducted by the crowd President Trump addressed, constitutes a rebellion or insurrection against the authority of the United States;

Whereas the attack on the United States Capitol on January 6, 2021, conducted by the crowd President Trump addressed, constitutes seditious conspiracy under section 2384 of title 18, United States Code, according to the Department of Justice memorandum on September 17, 2020, which states, “Section 2384 does not require proof of a plot to overthrow the U.S. Government . . . it also applies to conspiracies with any of the following objects: to oppose by force the authority [of the Government of the United States]; by force to prevent, hinder, or delay the execution of any law of the United States; or by force to seize, take, or possess any property of the United States contrary to the authority thereof.”;

Whereas no citizen of the United States is above the law, even the President of the United States or a former President of the United States; and

Whereas, as of January 20, 2021, at 12:01 p.m., the Department of Justice memorandum issued in 1973 that prevents Federal prosecutors from charging a sitting President with a crime no longer applies to Donald J. Trump: Now, therefore, be it
