

114TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S. 831

To reduce the number of nuclear-armed submarines operated by the Navy, to prohibit the development of a new long-range penetrating bomber aircraft, to prohibit the procurement of new intercontinental ballistic missiles, and for other purposes.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

MARCH 23, 2015

Mr. MARKEY (for himself, Mr. SANDERS, Mr. MERKLEY, and Mr. FRANKEN) introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Armed Services

A BILL

To reduce the number of nuclear-armed submarines operated by the Navy, to prohibit the development of a new long-range penetrating bomber aircraft, to prohibit the procurement of new intercontinental ballistic missiles, and for other purposes.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

4 This Act may be cited as the “Smarter Approach to 5 Nuclear Expenditures Act”.

6 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

7 Congress finds the following:

1 (1) The Berlin Wall fell in 1989, the Soviet
2 Union no longer exists, and the Cold War is over.
3 The nature of threats to the national security and 4 military interests of the United States has changed.
5 However, the United States continues to maintain
6 an enormous arsenal of nuclear weapons and deliv-
7 ery systems that were devised with the Cold War in 8 mind.

9 (2) The current nuclear arsenal of the United 10 States includes approximately 5,000 total nuclear 11 warheads, of which approximately 2,000 are de-
12 ployed with three delivery components: long-range
13 strategic bomber aircraft, land-based interconti-
14 nental ballistic missiles, and submarine-launched
15 ballistic missiles. The bomber fleet of the United 16 States comprises 93 B-52 and 20 B-2 aircraft. The 17 United States maintains 450 intercontinental bal-
18 listic missiles. The United States also maintains 14
19 Ohio-class submarines, up to 12 of which are de-
20 ployed at sea. Each of those submarines is armed 21 with up to 96 independently targetable nuclear war-
22 heads.

23 (3) This Cold War-based approach to nuclear 24 security comes at significant cost. Over the next 10
25 years, the United States will spend hundreds of bil-

1 lions of dollars maintaining its nuclear force. A sub-
2 stantial decrease in spending on the nuclear arsenal
3 of the United States is prudent for both the budget
4 and national security.

5 (4) The national security interests of the 6 United States can be well served by reducing the 7 total number of deployed nuclear warheads and their 8 delivery systems, as stated by the Department of 9 Defense's June 2013 nuclear policy guidance enti-
10 tled, "Report on Nuclear Employment Strategy of 11 the United States". This guidance found that force
12 levels under the Treaty on Measures for the Further
13 Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive
14 Arms, signed on April 8, 2010, and entered into 15 force on February 5, 2011, between the United 16 States and the Russian Federation (commonly 17 known as the "New START Treaty") "are more
18 than adequate for what the United States needs to 19 fulfill its national security objectives" and that the 20 force can be reduced by up to $\frac{1}{3}$ below levels under 21 the New START Treaty to 1,000 to 1,100 war-
22 heads.

23 (5) Even without additional reductions in de-
24 ployed strategic warheads, the United States can 25 save tens of billions of dollars by deploying those

1 warheads more efficiently on delivery systems and by 2 deferring production of new delivery systems until 3 they are needed.

4 (6) Economic security and national security are 5 linked and both will be well served by smart defense 6 spending. Admiral Mike Mullen, Chairman of the 7 Joint Chiefs of Staff, stated on June 24, 2010,
8 “Our national debt is our biggest national security
9 threat” and on August 2, 2011, stated, “I haven’t
10 changed my view that the continually increasing 11 debt is the biggest threat we have to our national se-
12 curity.”.

13 (7) The Government Accountability Office has 14 found that there is significant waste in the construc-
15 tion of the nuclear facilities of the National Nuclear 16 Security Administration of the Department of En-
17 ergy.
