Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a person is prohibited from possessing the green skin of any fur-bearing animal, except beaver, from the fifth day after the beginning of the closed season for that animal until the end of that closed season. This bill exempts from this prohibition the possession of the green skin of a lawfully killed fur-bearing animal that carries a registration tag issued by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) or for which there is an open season without any bag or possession limits. The bill also exempts from the prohibition a landowner or occupant who possesses the greenskin of certain fur-bearing animals that are trapped on that land. Also, under the bill, the prohibition and the exemption apply to beaver in the same manner that they apply to other fur-bearing animals.

Under current law, with limited exceptions, no person may sell, buy, barter, or trade a deer (except farm-raised deer), bear, elk, squirrel, the carcass of one of those wild animals, at any time, or any other wild animal, or its carcass, during the closed season for that wild animal. The tail and skin of a squirrel are currently exempt from this prohibition. This bill expands the exemption by including the skull and claws of a squirrel. Also, the bill allows a person to sell, purchase, barter, or trade a fur-bearing animal that has a valid registration tag attached by DNR or a wild animal, or its carcass, for which there is an open season and for which there is no bag or possession limit. The bill further allows the sale, purchase, barter, and trade of liquid scent made from the carcass of a lawfully taken wild animal, except from a bear's gallbladder. Finally, the bill allows the sale, purchase, barter, and trade of rabbits, or their parts, if they are lawfully taken by landowners on their own property or as part of DNR's program for eliminating nuisance wildlife.

Under current law, each trap used by a licensed trapper must have a metal tag that has the name and address of the owner of the trap. The bill changes this requirement so that the name and address must be that of the operator of the trap. Under the bill, the operator of a trap may use, in lieu of the name and address, a customer identification number issued by DNR to the operator under DNR's automated system for issuing trapping licenses and other fishing and hunting approvals.

For further information see the state fiscal estimate, which will be printed as an appendix to this bill.
