Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, a person injured by a negligent person can recover the damages resulting from the injury. Damages include economic damages, such as the injured person's medical costs, and noneconomic damages, such as compensation or pain and suffering. In addition, under current law, the plaintiff may recover punitive damages if he or she can prove that the defendant acted maliciously toward the plaintiff or in an intentional disregard of the rights of the plaintiff. Current law limits the amount of punitive damages that may be awarded to twice the amount of any compensatory damages recovered by the plaintiff or $200,000, whichever is greater. The limitation on damages does not apply if the conduct of the defendant included the operation of a vehicle, including a motor vehicle, a snowmobile, an all-terrain vehicle, and a boat, while under the influence of an intoxicant to a degree that rendered the defendant incapable of safe operation of the vehicle.

The bill eliminates the limitation on the amount of punitive damages that may be awarded to a plaintiff.
