1 AN ACT to renumber and amend 967.04 (1); and to create 967.04 (1) (b) and 2 967.04 (5) (a) 5. of the statutes; relating to: using testimony taken by
3 deposition in a criminal trial if witness is at risk of being intimidated.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, if a witness in a criminal proceeding may not be able to attend the trial or hearing, the court may take the witness's testimony by deposition if the testimony is material and necessary in order to prevent a failure of justice. The deposition testimony may be used at trial if the witness is dead, the witness is out-of-state, the witness is unable to attend because of sickness, or the subpoenaed witness does not attend.

Under this bill, a court may take a witness's testimony by deposition if it appears that the witness is at risk of being intimidated and therefore may not fully cooperate at trial. Under the bill, the deposition testimony may be used at trial if the court finds, by clear and convincing evidence, that the witness may have been intimidated and is at risk of not fully cooperating at trial. When making the finding, the court may consider the safety of the witness, the risk that the witness was intimidated, the nature of the offense being tried, if the witness has changed his or her testimony, and the nature of the defendant.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:
